

How to use the GPC-UNSPSC mapping tool

The GPC-UNSPSC mapping tool allows you to search at different levels (segment, family, etc.) in one classification system, browse simultaneously in both classification systems and find the equivalent code(s) (if existing) from the other system.

Step 1: Select the classification level(s) you want to search: segment, family, etc.

By default, 'brick' for GPC is selected and 'commodity' for UNSPSC. You can search at other levels or simultaneously in multiple levels.

Step 2: Enter search criteria

Code: you can search on the exact GPC code or on the exact UNSPSC code. For example, you can search GPC brick code 10000111 'Coffee/Coffee Substitutes – Beans/Ground'.

Title & definition: you can enter free text in 'title' or 'definition'. For example, you can search 'coffee' in title or definition.

Step 3: Refine your search by filtering on segment, family and class

The search results can be filtered by selecting a specific segment, family and class. For example, if you are searching for 'olive oil', search results for 'oil' will also include non-food oil, such as automotive oil. These search results can be excluded by selecting the segment 'Food, Beverage, Tobacco' in both classification systems.

Step 5: Check equivalent code(s) in the other classification system

On the result window (see step 4), you can double click on any item to see links and alignment already available for this item.
